EDITORIAL NOTES.

American residents at Rome propose erecting an Episcopal church to cost $75,000.

The health of the cattle now arriving at Chicago is better than has been known in several years.

Wheat harvesting is now all the go in Dakota and Minnesota. The grain is splendid both in quality and quantity.

The crop of corn on the Washita is immense—it is estimated that many fields will average seventy-five bushels to the acre.

No person can be governed by jealousy, who is not egotistical and full of vanity. The man of broad quality will put it under his feet.

The gem fifteen puzzle has sailed from America to Paris, and the Parisians, already sufficiently crazy, will now go the entire figure.

Dr. Glenn, of California, has 60,000 acres in wheat this year. Only think what a quantity of bread that stands for, that is, if it is not a California story.

Crops of all kinds are very much damaged in Sedgwick, Sumner, Harper and adjoining counties in Southern Kansas by the long continued drouth and heat.

The Protestant movement in France is said to have received a great impetus from the reading of the Bible and other Protestant books by the 100,000 soldiers driven into Switzerland during the war.

The French government is making a strong effort to control the trade of Central Africa. Already large sums of money have been expended with this object in view, and further appropriation will be made if necessary.

At a wedding which took place at Port Huron, N. Y. recently, the bride was eighty-one and the groom sixty-nine years old. But what assurance have we that the divorce court will not be called into requisition.

Merchants can find no better way of making their business known than through an advertisement in the TRANSPORTER, which paper circulates where no other journal does and among a class of people who pay cash for what they buy.

The largest rattlesnake ever seen in Washington arrived at the Smithsonian institute a few days ago from Florida. It is about eight feet long, twelve inches around the body and has twelve rattles. It will be killed with chloroform and a cast in plaster taken of the body.

Reports from New York City say that trade has not looked so bright in many years as it does to-day. Reports of a like encouraging character come from all parts of the country, and we have reason to believe, that, notwithstanding the mouthings of soreheads and malcontents, an era genuine prosperity has commenced.

England is still having trouble about the importation of American beef, which is sold so cheap that it is driving the home product from the market and ruining the home stock raiser. Several attempts, by fair and by foul means, have been made to drive the foreign article from the market, but thus far these attempts have failed. One well laid scheme was to sell all diseased beef as American. But this was defeated by selling American beef from one place of delivery, and selling no other kind there. This soon proved the superiority of the American beef and showed, to England's discredit, where the damaged meat came from.

Information has been received at Washington that the Emperor of China has removed all restrictions and bars on the participation of Chinese merchants in foreign trade. These Chinese merchants are shrewd, enterprising, and have large capital. Now that they can trade for themselves they will cut a very important figure in American and European traffic with the Celestials.

A Scottish school inspector reports a very marked increase in politeness among the people in certain counties. This change he attributes to the compulsory education laws of Scotland, which are very strict requiring every one to attend school for a period of length of time. This secures a fair education to all and does away with illiteracy. The United States might profit by the example.

From the press we learn that another murder has been committed in Sumner county, near Wellington. Henry Waggoner and wife resided on the farm of Emil Capps, who boarded with them. Waggoner had thought for some time that all was not right between Capps and his wife, and when they drove to town together, without his knowledge, he became greatly incensed and threatened vengeance. When the men met a bitter quarrel followed resulting in a fight with knives. Waggoner was badly cut to pieces and died soon after the encounter. Capps gave himself up to the authorities.

There are five men to one woman in Leadville, Col. At Silver Creek the ratio is seven to one. The older cities in Colorado, such as Denver, Colorado Springs, Pueblo, Georgetown, Boulder and Golden, show a fair proportion of women.

We live in an enlightened land and in the broad sun light of the nineteenth century, but occasionally a relic of former barbarism comes to the surface. In Delhi county, New Hampshire, for instance, a man was fined one dollar and costs for taking a load of hay out of his barn, spreading it out to dry and then returning it, all on Sunday.

THE INDIANS RAISING STOCK.

The Indians are fast coming to see the importance of stock raising as an industry, and many of them have already laid the foundation for good herds. Certainly this country is better adapted to stock raising than to anything else, and the Indian is in his natural element more nearly when taking care of stock than in any other civilized pursuit. With a country and a people peculiarly adapted to the business, we see many good reasons for thinking that this will one day be an important stock district, and the Indian, civilized by the labor necessary in the care of his stock, will no longer be the nation's ward, but an independent, self-supporting citizen. As remarked above, a number of herds have been commenced, and, considering the newness of the business, the defectiveness of the corrals and the Indian's natural tendency to go and come when he pleases, less trouble has been experienced than was expected, and the general result is far more satisfactory. The fear has been that they would get tired of their cattle and butcher them, but this has not been done to any great extent, nor is this result now anticipated. Something was said to one of the Arapahoes about killing one of his cows, but he would not listen to anything of the kind. He went on to show how many cattle would result from one cow in ten years. It was interesting to notice that his calculation was made with all the contingencies taken into account, and that he had the matter worked down about as fine as any white breeder could do it. Now, when the Red Man looks forward in this way, it is fair to presume that he will succeed and become wealthy. About 3,000 head of cattle are now owned by the Indians on this Reservation. The names of some of the most enterprising stock men are given below: Powder Face, Little Raven, Yellow Bear, Left Hand, Heap-of-Bears, Bear Shield, Jack and Jesse.
